A short review of this book By The Happy Woodworker I bought this book a good while back ... but found that I really don't use it to make trading decisions. But it contains interesting concepts and makes for interesting reading. And while I don't use its material in any specific or explicit way ... I think the ideas have value and I'm glad to have had the opportunity to consider the perspectives it presents. I would recommend it in this way ... but I wouldn't recommend it as a truly viable explicit trading method ... I think there are many other better ways to make trading decisions.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy R. A complete guide to trading with price, volume, and float Float Analysis explains how to use the Woods Cumulative Volume Float Indicator, the landmark concept in technical analysis that teaches the reader how to accurately determine when to purchase stocks. This groundbreaking book also contains all-new insights on how to understand and profit from these indicators, how support and resistance are redefined by this innovation, and how to implement these strategies into a high-growth portfolio. Steve Woods (Hyattsville, MD) is the Executive Director of FloatAnalysis.com and has written a number of articles for various journals including Technical Analysis of Stocks Commodities. New technology and the advent of around the clock trading have opened the floodgates to both foreign and domestic markets. Traders need the wisdom of industry veterans and the vision of innovators in today's volatile financial marketplace. The Wiley Trading series features books by traders who have survived the market's ever changing temperament and have prospered-some by reinventing systems, others by getting back to basics. Whether a novice trader, professional or somewhere in-between, these books will provide the advice and strategies needed to prosper today and well into the future.
